

DOG RIVER ALABAMA

Project Name: Dog River National Water Trail

Project Type:

- Education
- Recreation (National Water Trail)
- Restoration (Wetlands and Marsh)

Project Description: The Dog River watershed is 90 square miles, covering more than half of Mobile, Alabama. The River is one of the largest tributaries to Mobile Bay, a National Estuary, and serves as an important recreational waterway. The National Park Service is working with local agencies and non-governmental organizations to obtain a National Water Trail designation for the Dog River.

The partnership is also working to increase environmental awareness and stewardship of the river and its watershed through educational opportunities and recreational access, including construction of additional boating launch sites. Through these activities, the National Park Service and community partners will raise awareness of the Dog River as a recreational destination and important water resource in the Mobile area.

Lead Federal Agencies:

- National Park Service

Non-Federal Partners:

- City of Mobile
- Dog River Clearwater Revival

Outcomes for 2012:

- Obtain National Water Trail designation
- Construct an additional river access point
