

Original Letter Signed

Dear Secretariat,

I support the U.S. application to join the Extractive Industries Transparency Initiative. The public deserves to know exactly how much money comes from natural resources on public lands, and exactly where that money goes.

Robust reporting is important and the U.S. needs to be a worldwide leader of transparency. It is evident from the 39 countries that have already signed on that amazing things can happen when light is brought to spots of darkness.

The reporting standards for extractive industries need to be high and remain high.

Thank you for supporting this initiative, and I look forward to when the U.S. formally joins.

Sincerely,

Specific Comments Received

10/23/13 Ms. Alyssa Anderson	The U.S. should be an example. We always want to be seen as the good guys in the world, the kind of country other countries aspire to be like.
10/23/13 Mr. Thomas Nieland	The resources extracted from public lands must be used to benefit the public, and help transition to sustainable industries!
10/23/13 Ms. Ethlynn Dewitt	Long overdue!!
10/23/13 Mr. Neil Olson	The "Wild West" frontier age, when natural resources seemed unlimited, is over, and we need a careful accounting for the use of our remaining resources.
10/23/13 Mrs. Hazel Poolos	The EITI is exactly what we need to be a part of.
10/23/13 Dr. Brian Stross	The U.S. needs to be a worldwide leader of transparency, rather than a model of the opposite as currently seems to be the case.. 39 countries that have already signed on show that it can be done and should be done, and that should be just for starters.
10/23/13 Mr. Kevan Vance	As a citizen of this country, I am entitled to know all about my natural resources and deriving revenue from them must be public record for all to see. Thank you for your consideration.
10/23/13 Mr. Mark Cohen	It is our land. We have a right to know
10/23/13 Mrs. Maria Borowy	If the US Government could use the profits to benefit Social Programs the Republican's do not want to fund. Contractors should not be able to keep most of the profits.
10/23/13 Mrs. Susan Terwilliger	Public lands belong to all citizens, and it's important for the public to be able to understand exactly where and how the profits from these resources are used.
10/23/13 Mr. Jerry Bloomer	Extractive industries are notorious for keeping information about what they are doing or covering up what they have done.
10/23/13 Ms. miriam kurland	i am very upset that private companies are allowed to extract the public's natural resources.
10/23/13 Ms. Trudy Crow	The U.S. needs to be a worldwide leader of transparency and we need to know who profits from the natural resources secured from public land.
10/23/13 Ms. Sara Hart	the U.S. needs to be a worldwide leader of transparency.
10/23/13 Mr. Melvin Bautista	For too long, all mining, oil drilling, various types of mineral, oil & gas extration on our public lands have benefited the companies who have the mining permits. They have benefited from the mineral resources owned by the people. These companies need to show the wealth they have generated and start paying back to the people what they have taken.
10/23/13 Mr. Brad Henson	The Citizens need to have an understanding and a voice regarding the use of their public natural resources.

10/23/13 Mr. Keith Rutter	With everything that has happened recently with the NSA, transparency is more important than ever. Robust reporting is important and the U.S. needs to be a worldwide leader of transparency. It is evident from the 39 countries that have already signed on that amazing things can happen when light is brought to spots of darkness.
10/23/13 Ms. Dotty Caldwell	Accurate information is a vital component in making good policy.
10/23/13 Ms. Lynn Manzione	The Extractive Industries Transparency Initiative, or EITI makes it easier to track the money industries make from the sale of the public's natural resources, such as oil, coal, natural gas and hard rock minerals. The initiative has made a big difference in the 39 countries that are already taking part, and I'm excited about the potential for greater transparency that it offers us here in the U.S.
10/23/13 Dr. Robert Janusko	Recent disclosures have revealed how much of our government and industrial activity is carried on in secret. This is terminally detrimental to our democracy.
10/23/13 Mrs. Carole Plourde	This is long overdue and transparency is needed to prevent anymore resource "wars" for coming generations.
10/23/13 Ms. Rosemary Maziarz	As a citizen, I want to know how much of my tax dollars that are spent on public lands are spent for the benefit of the land and the flora and fauna on it and how corporations are profiting for free use of that land. Seems to me the public should reap some benefit from the taking of public resources.
10/23/13 Dr. John Wyndham	The general public is becoming more and more aware that giant corporations that reap huge profits are actually doing this by taking resources that arguably belong to the general community, and then off-loading the true costs of their operations onto the public by polluting the air, rivers, and oceans, as well as causing health problems and environmental degradation. The earth is actually a giant lifeboat on which we all depend for our existence. It is no longer acceptable for a few to make profits while degrading the ability of this lifeboat to support its occupants. On a small planet of finite resources, the greed of the few can no longer be allowed to outweigh the needs of humanity itself. We must move from a system of predatory capitalism to one of sustainable use of resources with a genuine consideration for maintaining life on the planet for future generations.
10/23/13 Mr. James Gordon	PRNDL. "Politics is like driving. To go backward put it in R. To go forward put it in D."

10/23/13 Mr. Mark McKennon	The extractive industries are predicated on making as much money as possible, cutting as many corners as possible, as often as possible. The rightful resources that belong to We the People seem a minor part of the equation to them. They pay only when forced or required, but unless we have more information, the government and people are in a weak position to require them to comply. The more information the better. Laws, regulations, subsidies, licensing arrangements, and enormous tax breaks have favored these industries more than long enough.
10/23/13 Mrs. Joan Smith	My husband and I totally support this. I could not open the field below so I will put my name here: Joan Smith, PO Box 86, Cedar Crest, NM 87008
10/23/13 Mr. Patrick Bosold	This is mission-critical information that should be completely public. We can only make good and fair decisions about public policy regarding resource extraction if we have a full and complete picture of how it works - and where the money goes.
10/23/13 Mrs. Diana Zeiset	The natural resources belong to all of us. It is our right to know what they are being used for...HUGE corporate profits are not a use!
10/23/13 Mr. Gary O'Connor	It is clear to me that the public has been shortchanged many times on mineral leases. EITI can go a long way toward redressing that inequity.
10/23/13 Ms. Amber Garlan	Transparency is an important part of democracy.
10/23/13 Ms. Erica Wissinger	It is evident from the 39 countries that have already signed on that positive benefits may result.
10/23/13 Mr. Gary Adams	The U.S. needs to be a worldwide leader of transparency. 39 countries have already signed on. The U.S. must as well.
10/23/13 Ms. Devon Cooper	Please consider joining the initiative. It will help us all leave a better world for generations to come.
10/23/13 Mr. Greg Flynn	Please support the Extractive Industries Transparency Initiative; it is in the best interest of the United States.
10/23/13 Ms. Susan Chandler	To restore its international credibility, the U.S. needs to become a leader in transparency, and this Initiative is a solid first step.
10/23/13 Mrs. Laura E. Montgomery	This is an extremely important action.
10/23/13 Ms. Martha Eberle	Having read of the results, I think the U.S. should join and benefit from this transparency.

10/23/13 Dr. Valerie Haugen	It is also the right thing to do! The US puts development assistance money into Nigeria, a wealthy country with a huge extractive industries sector and horrendous pollution and corruption and a 60+ malnutrition rate among children. Wouldn't it be so much more effective to combat the corruption, the pollution and the skewed distribution of wealth?
10/23/13 Mr. Ed Rothschild	Transparency is vital because the public needs to have information on the exploitation of its resources and whether the extraction of those resources is benefiting the public. It is evident from the 39 countries that have already signed on that shining a light in this area can bring reforms where and if needed.
10/23/13 Ms. Toni Garmon	DO YOUR JOB.....WE DESERVE TO KNOW THE TRUTH.... YOU WORK FOR US.....REMEMBER ????
10/23/13 Mrs. Sonja Stahlhut	This is an idea whose time has come. We need to know what we are giving up, and what we are gaining when we allow extraction of natural resources from publicly held lands. And we certainly need to know what is done with the money made from these ventures.
10/23/13 Ms. Wendy Fast	Basically, Extractive Industries are on the government dole, and the people are the losers.

10/23/13 Ms. Christina Volz-Bongar	Please make an example of the U.S. in the world and support this policy of transparency. It is imperative for our children's futures.
10/23/13 Mr. cletus stein	The public needs to make an appropriate amount on our resources and the damage needs to be totally redeemed!
10/23/13 Mr. ULF LÖIDBECK	Public land stretches fro surface down to the middle of the earth. All natural resources in and on public land elongs to us the people No drilling or mining into public land is allowed without the permission of us the owners. No drilling for oil in the waters along our coastlines are allowed without permission by us the people and we shall have our part of the profit. No drilling of oil on international water without US declaration of income from the drilling company if it is an American company or the profit takers are Americans
10/23/13 Ms. Patricia Shook	If it is Public Land (resources) why is there even a question ??? And.....transparency should be a given..... but alas...it's not. Thank you for this effort. Patricia Shook
10/23/13 Mr. Larry Zim	I suspect that the extractive corporations do not want this information examined at all, and are willing to exert pressure on the Interior Department to have their way. Please prove me wrong.
10/23/13 Mr. Richard Dimatteo	Thorough and accurate revelations are essential and the U.S. needs to be a worldwide leader of transparency
10/23/13 Mrs. Jeannie Bosa	It's past time to stop giving big business so much leaway and little to no supervision, while they rake in profits, give away millions to their CEO's, and increase prices to the struggling consumer. At least some transparency might help and should be required.
10/23/13 Mr. Steven Combes	STOP THE GLUTTONY! !
10/23/13 Ms. lisa rochelle	THIS IS IMPORTANT TO ME!
10/23/13 Mrs. Barbara Garber	The US needs to sign on to this. It isn't any different than farming someone's fields for whatever reason and then keeping them in the dark as to how much revenue has realized . Their our resources and we need to know details of their use.
10/23/13 Mr. Scott Amey	For example, Nigeria, an EITI compliant country, released audits that identified financial discrepancies, mispaid taxes, and system inefficiencies. According to EITI, Nigeria identified over US$800m of unresolved differences between what companies said that they paid in taxes, royalties, and signature bonuses against what the government said it received.

10/23/13 Dr. Robert Abramson	EITI is important because it helps identify the massive theft of property that belongs to the citizens. The only drawback to transparency is that it may reduce the many millions of dollars given to members of congress for voting against America and the citizens in payment for special treatment and tax breaks for these powerful and extremely wealthy corporations.
10/23/13 Mr. Robert Delfs	The US needs to be a worldwide leader of transparency about the use of our natural resources. As taxpayers and citizens, we need to understand the use of our public lands by private companies, the nature of the leases and the lease revenues collected by the government, whether our public lands were damaged or suffered other negative effects as the result of this use, and if so, how that damage to our public lands was mitigated or compensated.
10/23/13 Ms. darleen cox	Quit mining or drilling on public lands -----
10/23/13 Mr. Corbin Lambeth	Thorough, all-access reporting is absolutely essential, and the U.S. needs to be a worldwide leader of transparency. It is evident from the 39 countries that have already signed on that amazing things can happen when light is brought to spots of darkness. The more we allow to be hidden, the more we allow for laws to be broken and damage to be done. That is unacceptable.
10/23/13 Mrs. Susan Raybuck	A full analysis of the benefits and costs of extractive industries and robust reporting of the findings are critical to informed decision making. The world's oldest democracy should be the worldwide leader in transparency because that provides the infrastructure for better decision-making and sheds light on spots of darkness. With 39 countries already signed on to support, the U.S. should be one of those countries exhibiting leadership in this area. Please support EITI.
10/23/13 Ms. Marilyn Flint	39 countries that have already signed on. We need to do the same.
10/23/13 Mr. Richard Fairfield	Robust reporting is important and the U.S. needs to be a worldwide leader of transparency.

10/23/13 Mr. Michael MacPherson	The oil from the Arctic, off shore drilling and drilling anywhere else on American soil is all going on the international stock market, there is no benefit to the American people. The American taxpayers own this country, not you Mr. President, not the oil companies, not the Banks, not the Koch Brothers, Not the NRA, not the Republicans and not Wall Street, we the taxpayers do and we do not want our tax money to be stolen by you and corrupt politicians. Please give back any money you have taken from the Oil industry and stop this insane oil drilling that the American people are not getting a single dime for. How would you like it Mr. President if a large furniture shop paid your security to let them come into the White House and take the furniture and you have to go and pay for your bed in order to have a good nights sleep? That is what the American people have to do when they buy gas. They have to buy the gas made from their oil. At least stop the oil companies from drilling in the Arctic.
10/23/13 Mr. James F. Pasquini	It's about time that we, as owners' of resources mined on public lands, start receiving the proper monies from the industries profiting from them. If the industries as willing to make the public lands off-limit to the public while they're mining, then the public should receive compensation in the form of money into the federal and/or state treasuries.
10/23/13 Ms. Mary Sive	Dear Secretary Jewell: The US should be taking the lead internationally, and I hope we will.
10/23/13 Mr. kevin orme	We need to KNOW what companies are up to, good or bad. If good, we can praise them for being responsible. If bad, we can STOP it. Either way, it beats endless FOIA requests and lawsuits/court battles. Please support transparency, here and now.
10/23/13 Mr. Joseph Lynne	In light of the recent government shutdown debacle, I believe this would create an excellent opportunity for the U.S. federal government to reestablish trust with the American people, an essential component of a strong constitutional republic
10/23/13 Mr. grant wilson	Living in Utah it is becoming increasingly important to know where the money from the mining and drilling operations on public lands(BLM and state protected?property) is going. There is currently no information available and I, for one, am very tired of watching the rich get richer at my expense. Please follow through on joining this initiative and forcing the transparency we need.

10/23/13 Mr. Gregory Driscoll	Transparency is one of the the hallmarks of democratic societies. In this one step, we can demonstrate to the world that democracy still motivates this country.
10/23/13 Ms. Boots Whitehead	We need 100% transparency
10/23/13 Mr. Mark Bauman	DO THE RIGHT THING. PROTEVT PEOPLE AND THE ENVIRONMENT
10/23/13 Mr. Daniel Mancinone	Honest reporting is important and the U.S. should be a worldwide leader of transparency
10/23/13 Mrs. Rose Bertrand	We need to be a leader to the world in openness. No one can change what they do not acknowledge.
10/23/13 Mrs. Mary Botcheos	This is the age of information technology, governments have the choice to be transparent or to be the target of misinformation. So far, the US government has proved incompetent: Affordable Health Care software, Manning and Snowden.
10/23/13 Ms. Rhonda Rumrey	As citizens, we have the right to know what happens on and with OUR land!
10/23/13 Ms. Rebecca Kimsey	If we are going to allow private entities to use our public lands, then we have an absolute right to now how much those private entities are benefiting, and how they are using "our" profits.
10/23/13 Ms. Teddy Gingerich	Too many foreign countries are behind mining, drilling and other methods of removing natural resources on our land. Too many areas are destroyed forever, by companies who have no need to worry about the damage they do, no incentive to clean up and restore the land.
10/23/13 Mr. Dennis Hatleli	As citizens of a Democracy it is the obligation of government to keep us informed
10/23/13 Ms. Carlene Petty	The public always needs to know the truth. The truth about drilling is important.
10/23/13 Ms. Katherine Rykowski	It is time to declare that we will no longer support those practices that hurt our climate and our health.
10/23/13 Ms. Lynn Wilbur	The resources belong to the people, not the corporations that lease to extract. Money from the enormous profits that these corporations rake in must benefit the communities from which the resources are taken. I support the US involvement in the EITI.

10/23/13 Dr. Daniel Gibbs	More revenue is needed from the extractive industries, particularly the fossil fuels oil, gas and coal. Some of that revenue should be used to support renewable alternatives. The future cost to the U.S. from burning fossil fuels is a huge unfunded liability being passed on to our grandchildren. Let's at least have transparency about which companies and industries are getting benefits today.
10/23/13 Ms. Fran Watson	We should get into this!
10/23/13 Ms. Debi Jackson	Robust reporting is vitally important and the U.S. needs to be a worldwide leader of transparency
10/23/13 Mrs. Andronetta Douglass	In order to safeguard the natural resources for the sake of the public, we need this transparency. We should not be robbed of our natural resources.
10/23/13 Mr. Sanford Schuman	It's odd that Iraq - obviously under US influence - applied for EITI status in 2010 (granted last December), and yet we are not a compliant nation. It is hardly debatable that in many countries, the benefits of natural resources flow to a relative handful of families and investors. This stagnates the economy and adds to social and political unrest. Of all the ways the US might wish to encourage successful democracies in the world, I think that adding support to EITI would provide the most "bang for the buck". "Let your light so shine before men."
10/23/13 Mrs. Lucy Simons Kaufman	Big business, especially the oil industry, needs to be watched and held accountable when they damage habitat.
10/23/13 Mrs. Maris Keller	Once our public lands are being used by private entities for their own profit taking, we no longer can call them "public lands". The losses are permanent when we extract non-replaceable materials. The present becomes, therefore, the future of the planet that we leave to our children.
10/23/13 Mr. John Nutefall	Please support EITI.
10/23/13 Ms. Alice Green	It is way past time to be doing this, let's not waste any more time. Start now!
10/23/13 Mr. Warren Keller	The U.S. needs to be a worldwide leader of transparency. It is evident from the 39 countries that have already signed on that amazing things can happen when light is brought to spots of darkness.
10/23/13 Mr. J Froiland	You only need secrecy if you're doing something wrong.
10/23/13 Ms. Jerri Jarvis	We the people, the taxpayers of the U.S. demand transparency on where are money is going.

10/23/13 Ms. Ellen Barron	It is evident from the 39 countries that have already signed on that amazing things can happen when light is brought to spots of deception.
10/23/13 Mrs. Susan Dunaway	Public land BELONGS to the public. It is held in the 'public trust' - WE, the public, should be TOLD just how RICH all the companies who extract OUR natural resources are becoming !!
10/23/13 Mr. Dick Gray	It is evident from the 39 countries that have already signed on that amazing things can happen when light is brought to spots of darkness. Also, it keeps people honest.
10/23/13 Mrs. Monica Latka Black	It is time for the public to be fully informed about the dealings of Big Oil, Gas and Coal. An informed public can and will make change for the good of all instead of the enrichment of a few.
10/23/13 Mr. Robert Hernandez	Please help make this a reality.
10/23/13 Ms. Anita Buffer	Robust reporting IS EXTREMELY IMPORTANT. The U.S. needs to be a WORLDWIDE LEADER of TRANSPARENCY. It is evident from the 39 countries that have ALREADY SIGNED ON..... that amazing things can happen when light is brought to spots of darkness.
10/23/13 Dr. Kerry Davis	All of us middle-income tax payers give corporations trillions of our hard earned money in subsidies and their free use of public lands. Tax payers should get something back from that sacrifice. Lets have transparency about company profits coming from public lands.
10/23/13 Mr. Paul Roden	Energy extractive industries who give millions to political campaigns, candidates, PAC's and political parties as well as to lobbyists, should disclose who and how much money they have given and who has accepted it. Polluters shouldn't be aloud to write the rules, pick their enforcers and get away with violations by buying their way out it and still not complying with the law as weak as it is and continue ruining our environment at the taxpayers expense and health.
10/23/13 Ms. Angela Raymond	If the government is going to allow the use of eminent domain and other immoral strategies to take land from it's citizens, then the least they can do is be transparent about where the money is going. I don't agree with these tactics and truly believe that "green" is the way to go, and think more emphasis, time and energy should go into green energy. Until then, I agree with this petition.

10/23/13 Mr. Brian McNaughton	Transparency in extractive industries is an absolute must have! The public must have complete access to all the facts and figures surrounding all the extractive industries, now! Robust reporting is important and the U.S. needs to be a worldwide leader of transparency. It is evident from the 39 countries that have already signed on that amazing things can happen when light is brought to spots of darkness.
10/23/13 Ms. Elsie Pope	This is the right thing to do. Please.
10/23/13 Mr. Robert Warren	Truthful accounting of resources depletion and redistribution and the monies derived therefrom should never have been an issue, yet extractive industries have almost always been given a green light to proceed at their business as a matter of course without regard to rigorous accounting.
10/23/13 Ms. Marcia Bailey	Right now, we, the public, are paying for all of the mistakes and not getting benefit from the products these companies are selling for huge profits. If this were to change, we might use that money for projects that would help all Americans.
10/23/13 Mr. Colin Kay	Like the NBC and CBS commercials say. "The more you know"
10/23/13 Mr. fankr brisk	Work for your country. Not corporations.
10/23/13 Ms. t logan	It is evident from the 39 countries that have already signed on that amazing things can happen when light is brought to spots of darkness. PUBLIC LAND
10/23/13 Dr. elizabeth hegeman	Sunshine on drilling and natural resource exploitation!
10/23/13 Mr. Eric Knepper	I sincerely hope we will participate in this international initiative to continue our leadership throughout the world.

10/23/13 Ms. Amanda McNeill	Our natural resources are jointly-held by the American people and we have the right to know exactly who is making a fortune at our expense. Public oversight is impossible when the facts are held in secrecy. Our national health may depend upon our knowing these facts so that the public can request specific protections from our government, which, by the way, is not in existence to produce obscene profits for corporations. The Department of the Interior has a trust obligation to manage our jointly-held resources in the best interests of the American citizens. Joining the EITI will bring long-missing and much-needed transparency to the extractive industries sector of our economy and eventually result in a higher trust level of government management in the American people.
10/23/13 Mr. Jim Rice	This issue needs to be broadly reported to the public freely and often.
10/23/13 Ms. Nancy Lyttle	I also believe that Americans have the right to PROHIBIT the exploitation and ruination of our Natural Resources! The rich get richer and the people are left to clean up their mess!
10/23/13 Mr. Gary Peters	I hope our government will join this initiative.
10/23/13 Mr. William Wagstaff	In addition, the public needs to earn a significant return from this extraction that is used to fund the public good, i.e., schools, roads, infrastructure, etc
10/23/13 Mr. Jeffrey Werner	I personally hope to see the U.S. begin to follow through on promises of transparency
10/23/13 Ms. Elaine Balgemann	The initiative has made a big difference in the 39 countries that are already taking part. The Extractive Industries Transparency Initiative, or EITI. In short, EITI makes it easier to track the money industries make from the sale of the public's natural resources, such as oil, coal, natural gas and hard rock minerals. This is an opportunity for the U.S. to showcase its commitment to transparency. Americans deserve 100 percent transparency on where the revenue from our natural resources goes.
10/23/13 Ms. Pat Kirk	THEY SHOULD BE REQUIRED TO REMIT A LARGE PERCENTAGE OF THEIR PROFITS TO THE OWNERS OF THE LAND-THE PEOPLE/GOVERNMENT OF THE USA.

10/23/13 Mr. kent mollohan	Oh, and you will likely need to remind our "liberal" and "mainstream" press that they should report such things. I know, it's a bother, but remind them anyway.
10/23/13 Mrs. Helen Hanna	39 countries that have already signed on to this initiative, and I think that U.S. citizens also deserve to know what is going on and who is getting rich off of the natural God-given resources that belong to all of us, as a whole.
10/23/13 Ms. Sherron Collins	Too often, awards and fines are publicized, but the destination of the money is not explained. The same goes for any income to the government. The EITI will make that information public.
10/23/13 Ms. Suzanne Shute	Transparency is most important when it comes to natural resources on public land. This is the basis of any fair transaction. The Interior Department shouldn't have any problem with this request unless there is something they're trying to hide. Transparency is essential to a healthy democracy. We need 100% transparency on revenue from the public's natural resources.
10/23/13 Mr. Bruce Kran	Robust reporting is important and the U.S. needs to be a worldwide leader of transparency. It is evident from the 39 countries that have already signed on that amazing things can happen when light is brought to spots of darkness. How else can the government properly perform its fiduciary responsibility to get the best value for what is the property of the American people. As a citizen of Nevada I am quite aware that the public land is often made available at well below its worth, with the true value being extracted abroad by foreign companies in the case of our gold ore. We can't afford to not do this right and for that we need to collect this information. Go for it,
10/23/13 Mrs. Rolaine Smoot	We need to know just how much they're making and not sharing for destroying public land!!!
10/23/13 Ms. raquel brac	It's time for Americans to know how America spends the money it receives from sales of the public's natural resources. Let's finally make that happen.
10/23/13 Ms. Frances Wade	Resources from Public Lands should not be just passed over to private companies extracting them. They should make a fair profit for their work, but the public also has a stake in this and should receive fair compensation for depleting our lands.
10/23/13 Miss Rosita Aranita	I firmly support greater transparency so we can protect ourselves and our environment!

10/23/13 Mr. Robert Paarshall	It was recently in the news, that the U.S. government agency tasked with monitoring extractive industry royalty payments here was LITERALLY IN BED with industry reps, and turning blind eyes to under-compensation abuses. We NEED public awareness of the deals that have been struck, and monitoring of actual production and payout of the agreed-on royalties. It is clear that permitting underpayment has been YET ANOTHER secretive dollop of corporate welfare support, at our expense. There are lots of REASONS why Uncle Sam is broke, and this is certainly part of that ugly picture. Gas, oil and coal companies are busy squandering America's patrimony of energy resources in hungrier international markets, gaining quick profits, at our loss - and inflating the cost of energy here. At the very least, we need public understanding of the compensation levels that we are receiving, and how that compares with international norms. Internationally, there has been a pattern of extractive industries paying off a few local power brokers - gaining entree to local resources - and paying little or nothing into national accounts. We NEED to KNOW if the same is actually standard operating procedure HERE! In truth, energy in the ground is a beautiful thing. It will only get MORE valuable, over time, if we can keep our petro-profiteers from squandering it prematurely. Also we subvert our own climate-protection agendas, by encouraging international energy users to go for that low-hanging fruit, rather than turning to sustainable energy.
10/23/13 Ms. Pamela Burns	Robust reporting is important and the U.S. needs to be a worldwide leader of transparency. It is evident from the 39 countries that have already signed on that amazing things can happen when light is brought to spots of darkness. Pease.
10/23/13 Mr. Sherman Lewis	Industry has to make money, but balanced against other imperatives, mainly protecting the environment and fair tax revenues. The temptation to skimp on these other imperatives in order to get economic growth should be avoided. Long term, far more economic gains have come from technological advance than weak regulation or tax loopholes. High commodity prices are major drivers of technology and productivity gains. Transparency will help achieve the imperatives and even spur technology.
10/23/13 Ms. Betty Trentlyon	The incredibly profitable fossil fuel industry must be made more accountable.
10/23/13 Mr. Larry Courtney	Keep up the good work.

10/23/13 Mr. Bill Lynn	Yes, EITI is necessary.
10/23/13 Ms. charlene santana	I am very much interested in what happens to public lands resources and the revenues generated. Are these monies benefitting the public in any way? What projects or services have been implemented from the proceeds? What projects/ services, etc are to be created/implemented going forward? Does the public have any input in as to how these revenues are utilized?
10/23/13 Mrs. MaryLee Hicks	Public lands should be a resource for all! The people shd be able to see how they are used'
10/23/13 Dr. K Burch	It is alleged that cancer causing chemicals are used for fracking. And how do we PROVE it unless their is allowance for investigation INDEPENDENTLY. We have no reliable authority to accept but the GMO companies who are making billions from their products as to whether they are safe on LONGTERM and AS-USED basis: why not? We have been on this road before with poisons which affect us for decades: Asbestos, PCBs. DDT, LEAD for just a few. Are the chemical compounds used to disperse oil spills toxic to humans or just to everything which comes into contact with it? We NEED to know before WE permit the continued use! Can anyone imagine what would happen if government permitted unlimited use of plutonium for making school lunches if a company found a way to make it profitable and presented its one sided version of safety? That's where we are!
10/23/13 Mr. David Bridgeman	The public would like to see these figures to properly determine the re-distribution of the public assets to the public on the model of The Alaskan State Fund.
10/23/13 Ms. MaryAnn Peters	All too often, some generic "report" is made in which we must go digging (without knowing where to search) to find out any real information.
10/23/13 Mr. Harrison Carlton	I would like to see the exact breakdown on how the money is spent on each of the companies who extract natural resources and who benefits from this operation. Sincerely, Harrison Carlton
10/23/13 Mr. Vincent Patti	One more - this "darkenss" is genocidal. This is really, really important to fully acknowledge.
10/23/13 Mr. greg pearce	There comes a time when public interests MUST be more iimportant than coporate profits, and that time is now. Until there is reasonable controls placed on these greed driven thieves, then nothing is safe, and nothing is sacred. These things will not return , once they are gone, and to facilitate this kind of destruction is criminal.

10/23/13 Ms. Nina Council	Absolutely there must be transparency. Today our U.S. Wild horses are being rounded up by the BLM on PUBLIC LANDS because the cattle industry wants the horses gone. Many illegal activities are taking place such as beautiful, intelligent wild horses being sold off to kill buyers for $10 and being sent to Mexico and Canada to be slaughtered for human consumption. France, Belgium, Japan, and now more countries are buying horsemeat from the U.S. If more Americans were aware hopefully this horror would stop, and humans brought to justice for these terrifically brutal slaughters with so much horrific suffering involved. I absolutely support transparency.
10/23/13 Ms. Sandra Herndon	If Congress did it's job, there would be no need to prosecute "Whistleblowers"!
10/23/13 Mrs. Vivianne Mosca-Clark	The resources, are for all that live in the area. Business Seems to want to take it all for them selves.
10/23/13 Dr. William Davis	Never trust a corporation!
10/23/13 Mr. Garry Spencer	The US has provided an important infrastructure to promote commerce. It is vitally important that those reaping the benefit are equitable in sharing the cost.
10/23/13 Mr. Allen Bohnert	Thank you.
10/23/13 Ms. Harriette Lefler	We should not give our natural resources away without benefit to our citizens. Corporations ARE NOT people who get freebies from the public in exchange for destroying our environment air,water, infrastructure and on top of it all charge us taxes for the product produced when they pay no taxes and CEOs make millions.
10/23/13 Ms. Sanna Lowrance	When government begins to hold the plutocracy accountable, perhaps citizens will begin to regain some level of trust in the system.
10/23/13 Ms. Susan Wickman	We have every right to track use and profit from our natural resources. Sincerely, Susan Wickman
10/23/13 Ms. Marie Snavely	Please support our country's signing on to this. Thank you for considering my concerns.
10/23/13 Ms. Judith Zitko	In addition to this, perhaps a percentage of money earned from these materials could either be paid to the government or subsidies for the people in the form of tax credits. It's our tax dollars that support the public lands so we should benefit whenever a private corporation extracts minerals, etc. for their profit. This is done already in Alaska with the oil industry.

10/23/13 Mr. Tom BrandtIt's about time corporations STOP getting public land and resources free or almost free. $150,00 per mbf for old growth timber should be illegal.
10/23/13 Mrs. Polly Tarpley	This is a long-time bone of contention in the USA, and it needs to be rectified posthaste!
10/23/13 Ms. Maureen Murphy	I support POGO in this endeavor. The US needs to be more transparent and this initiative will help worldwide.
10/23/13 Mr. T. Ed. Webb	Robust reporting is important and the U.S. needs to be a worldwide leader of transparency. It is evident from the 39 countries that have already signed on that amazing things can happen when light is brought to areas of darkness.
10/23/13 Ms. Linda Maynard	What happens when the lies come out
10/23/13 Ms. Dee Potter	This is a GREAT idea!
10/23/13 Mr. John Viacrucis	It's time that the U.S. join this initiative.
10/23/13 Dr. V.E. Perkins	But bringing light to "spots of darkness" is only the beginning. The extractive industries are taking materials from the earth that will never be replaced. They need to pay far more than they do for being permitted to mine. In particular, they need to be forced to share their obscene profits with the people of the poor countries where this exploitation is going on. Too often, whatever sharing of profits is happening goes into the pockets of corrupt politicians. In view of my comments, I'd like to know what the EITI is going to do to address those further problems.
10/23/13 Mr. cody vanarsdale	I have no problem with individual people or companies making money in public lands, but only if they are paying a fair rate back to the public from the profits from that land -- not some cheap rate based on some formula set ages ago or some politician's "idea" given to them by these profiteers. We need more money coming into the government to balance our budget (NOT for additional spending) and setting a fair rate in return for using and extracting public lands is one way to do that.
10/23/13 Ms. GRACE NEFF	I've been wondering about this as it seems the poorer nations are the ones suffering the most.
10/23/13 Ms. Rhoda Karusaitis	Our country has many needs and the money from use of its resources should be known and applied to public needs. Mining right fees from 1875, for example, should be known to our citizens.
10/23/13 Ms. DEBORAH SMITH	WE NEED MORE OF THIS TYPE OPERATING.

10/23/13 Ms. Susan Westervelt	Our public lands have far more value than just what is extracted from them for money. Our natural resources are finite and we simply must use them judiciously. Being able to track where the money goes will give us a much needed start.
10/23/13 Mr. Paul Richey	Since we are such a prominent world industrial leader it would behoove us to make our participation in the Extractive Industries Transparency Initiative at this time. Keep in mind the extraction of minerals from PUBLIC LANDS should result in public benefit not the bottomline of a private corporation or worse yet, the annual income of someone from the 1%.
10/23/13 Ms. Corrinne Crawford	These lands belong to all of us, and as owners, we should be informed clearly about what happens with our property.
10/23/13 Ms. SUE DEAN	Please support this long overdue idea to become a real it. Thank you!
10/23/13 Ms. Shel Anderson	I lived in Oregon for 30 years, and have observed what is allowed on federal lands. It is very critical that the local community can know what is being taken from local federal areas.
10/23/13 Mr. John Catherine	IT'S PAST TIME TO UNDO THE ENVIRONMENTALLY CATASTROPHIC EFFECTS OF DICK CHENEY'S SECRET MEETINGS WITH ENERGY PRODUCERS. E.G., THE UNDISCLOSED CHEMICALS USED IN FRACKING!
10/23/13 Ms. Sarah McKee	Back when I worked for the U.S. Department of Energy, I was well aware that oil companies did not pay Indian tribes anywhere what the tribes were owed in royalties for oil removed from their lands. It would not in the least surprise me that the same was true for federal lands. Accurate, complete reporting is imperative. The U.S. needs to be a worldwide leader of transparency
10/23/13 Dr. Harry & Virginia Pence	We should all be cautious of any arrangements that are made behind closed doors. Americans try to be well informed, and they are tired of lies and poor bargains that cost us more and give us so much less than we are entitled to receive.
10/23/13 Mr. gary charles	BETTER YET HOW MUCH OF THE MONEY IS DONATED TO POLITICAL PARTIES
10/23/13 Mrs. MaryLynn Michaelis	This is a concept whose time has come

10/23/13 Mr. ALFREDO ALANIZ	Every year, trillions of dollars are generated worldwide by the industries that extract natural resources through mining or drilling. This often happens on public land--but how much from the sale of those natural resources benefits the public and how much enriches corporate coffers? Profits realized, need to be shared with the Public Trust, and any mistakes and Environmental disasters, as the result of Corporate mishaps, mismanagement of resources, malfeasance, Corporate Screw ups (like the BP disaster in the Gulf of Mexico) and Environmental failures need to be coordinated. And Assurances need to be taken by Private and Publically Traded Corporations on their on Balance sheets. The Public Trust should not have be the Savior of last Resort, when it comes to the malfeasance by Irresponsible corporations, because they mismanaged resources or did not plan properly. Corporations will ALWAYS FAIL! AND, THEY WILL ALWAYS FAIL THE PUBLIC TRUST, because they are ONLY concerned with THEIR OWN INTERESTS, and NOT the Interests of the Public, the Country, or that of the United States. signed, Alfredo Alaniz, of Tyler, Texas
10/23/13 Mr. James Dryer	Support EITI now.
10/23/13 Ms. Barbara Dahms	Our resources belong to our people. To let their value be siphoned off to Capitalists around the world is criminal. Do not allow it. Give us an accounting of their robbery.
10/23/13 Ms. margaret ropchan	no government secrecy in a democracy
10/23/13 Ms. Sue Miller	39 countries ahead of US? What is that? WE SHOULD HAVE BEEN THE FIRST! Why was our "application" so late? Well, we all know why, don't we? We have allowed the "darkness" to take over our governing. NUTS! Shame on the USA, shame on all of us who still vote for people to represent us who have no idea about anything good. I have many neighbors on my small street in a small city who know what is right and what is wrong. These are the people I want to "elect" to offices. So, good people in the Interior Department, choose to turn around from the darkness. BRING IN THE LIGHT!
10/24/13 Mr. Jeffery Hokans	Please help us with transparency ! Thank you.
10/24/13 Mr. Jeff Ball	We deserve to know how the government is managing our land. I hope you agree.

10/24/13 Mr. Eli Barrett	If we are to make informed decisions as citizens of the United States we need to be informed of all things that concern our way of life and transparency is the only way. I am for EITI, I hope you will support this initiative as well.
10/24/13 Mrs. Barbara Warner	For many years there has been little profit to the public from extractive activities on public lands as well as overgrazing by cattle and sheep. There has been environmental damage and wildlife have suffered also. This must stop now.
10/24/13 Mr. Bill Gardiner	The US must be the world leader in all aspects of government transparency.
10/24/13 Mrs. Judith Duval	Extracting companies should pay the government for what they mine on public lands what they would have to pay private landowners. We, the people, own public land and should be recompensed at the market rate. After all, isn't that capitalism.
10/24/13 Mrs. Helen Findley	We need to protect our natural resources, and this is one way to do it!
10/24/13 Ms. Mary Eliades	Thank you for joining the Extractive Industries Transparency Initiative.
10/24/13 Mr. Anthony Wilson	The wealthy in USA have moved again and again to hide their activities from the public, based on the very correct assumption that if we knew what they were doing, we would demand changes. Only question: Will you work to protect and inform the PUBLIC, or the BILLIONAIRES? Please be one of the good guys and move to INCREASE transparency.

10/24/13 Mr. Aubre James	It is high time that the people or this world know what is happening to them and why. This can only be accomplished through transparency. By the Grace of God, and submission to the Holy word of God. It does say in; 1st Thessalonians Chapter 5;12-13 12 And we beseech you, brethren, to know them which labour among you, and are over you in the Lord, and admonish you; 13 And to esteem them very highly in love for their work's sake. And be at peace among yourselves. Proverbs Chapter 22;7-9 7 ¶ The rich ruleth over the poor, and the borrower is servant to the lender. 8 ¶ He that soweth iniquity shall reap vanity: and the rod of his anger shall fail. 9 ¶ He that hath a bountiful eye shall be blessed; for he giveth of his bread to the poor.
10/24/13 Mr. James Workman	There is no transparency in the handling of the Publics Monies earned from the sale, lease and / or other communication of a store of value for public lands, resources and / or any other item fixed or other wise that is considered to be state or government managed property on behalf of the people of the United States. This email and push will lead to no real transparency, but it will lead to a few more people knowing the names of the people responsible for the ongoing robbery of the American People. May Justice find all of you, sooner than later.
10/24/13 Mr. Dan Freeman	The time to do this is now. People need to know what is being done in their name and to their land.
10/24/13 Ms. Barbara Hegedus	ACCOUNTABILITY MAINTAINS RESPONSIBILITY.
10/24/13 Mrs. Mary Harmon	The public is still in the dark when it comes to income from natural resources on out public lands, and your support of the EITI initiative will help to improve the standards for these industries.
10/24/13 Mrs. Allison O'Dell	It is crazy that this has not already been done! I strongly encourage this effort.

10/24/13 Ms. Jenefer Ellingston	Our gov't has allowed extraction of public resources from public lands ... since the resources were discovered. Does the public benefit from these sales? Of course not. The corporate profiteers get the benefit. Finally, there's a ripple of change in the world and the corporate profiteers will feel a breeze growing to a wind ... that will change the way "business is done" ... maybe. Let's get on board this wind of change. Jenefer Ellingston, 641 Maryland Ave. NE Washington, DC, 20002
10/24/13 Ms. H E Davis	It is time that the government work for all the people of this country, not companies and the rich.
10/24/13 Ms. Ana Alvarez	We deserve to know where the revenue from the public's natural resources goes.
10/25/13 Mr. Steven Morgan	The United States should of been the leader in this endeavor not the 40th, but regardless of why we haven't participated so far we should absolutely do everything necessary to join the initiative as soon as we possibly can. We have no idea with out this kind of transparency what our country is giving up or to who. Our own resources could be funding agenda's that are against our own interests. I greatly appreciate any and all efforts you can make in completing our application and joining with these other countries in allowing the truth to be easily open to the public.
10/25/13 Mrs. Deana McBride	Considering most natural resources cannot be replaced as fast as we are using them I think it is important to see who is benefiting and by how much. Robust reporting is important and the U.S. needs to be a worldwide leader of transparency. It is evident from the 39 countries that have already signed on that amazing things can happen when light is brought to spots of darkness.
10/25/13 Ms. Gail Williams	Also help support small newspapers & certified journalism so we a source of truth in our media.
10/25/13 Ms. Margaret Yovan	I believe that our government may be giving away resources too cheaply, but the only way to know for sure is to actually track from the source to the $$$. Please join EITI, and provide American citizens and our government officials with the factual data necessary to make the best choices for our nation as a whole.
10/25/13 Mrs. Emilie Marlinghaus	It is so important to understand how the sale of the natural resources on public lands to private corporations is subsidized by taxpayers' dollars and how little of the profits that those corporations realize is ever returned to the public coffers. It's a criminal disgrace that cries out to be remedied.

10/25/13 Mrs. Melodie Metje	Love this idea! Corporations should not be able to take natural resources away from publicly owned land and take all the profits. Profits should go back to the people. All of it.
10/25/13 Ms. Nancy Lowell	Please go forward with this plan. I suspect a fair amount of funds generated by mineral extraction on public lands does NOT flow back into the U.S. coffers, but comes to line the pockets of certain filthy rich campaign contributors. I'd like to see that stopped.
10/25/13 Mr. Dave Kisor	Now if you can only apply this to the Pentagon budget.
10/25/13 Mrs. Imgard Conley	Sadly we have just been reminded of how much "The People" are kept in the dark!!!
10/25/13 Mr. David Sovey	COAL = POISON!
10/26/13 Mrs. Karen Mayer	Trust in the United States keeps getting lower. We need us to join EITI.
10/26/13 Mr. Dan Carpita	The tax incentives these industries are receiving is gift enough. Not only should they be paying their market price for the wealth they are extracting from public lands, but they should also be charged for the environmental damage being done, now and into the future.
10/26/13 Ms. Elsie Pope	Each and every American citizen has the 'right to know' all there is to know regarding what our elected persons are doing and why.
10/26/13 Mrs. Patricia Grames	Turn up the wattage. It is the right thing to do. Please. Our Founding Fathers envisaged a United States where free speech means that people can critique the government, and a free press (media) means that reporters are not shut out of government business. Since it is our tax money the government is spending, we have a right to know where and how it is spent, and by whom and to whom.
10/26/13 Mr. Stephen Bailey	YES!! YES!!! YES!!!! YES!!!! YES!!!! YES!!!! YES!!!!
10/26/13 Mr. Michael Letendre	We should have full government transparency.
10/26/13 Mr. John Pasqua	pay up
10/26/13 Mr. G. Scott Hansen	Let us be the 40th country to join this worthwhile endeavor.
10/26/13 Ms. Susanne Scott	Retired Air Force

10/26/13 Ms. Kathleen Maher	It is OUR future at stake, we have a right to know.
10/26/13 Mr. Mark Hayduke Grenard	Be transparent about reporting on all energy sources coming out of the U.S.
10/26/13 Mr. Peter Curia	THERE IS NO SUBSTITUTE FOR THE TRUTH.
10/26/13 Mr. Louis Albano	With money for government programs and other services in short supply,we must not allow waste. Private companies must pay a fair share of their profits for using the natural resources on public land.
10/26/13 Mr. Dave Bruker	That being said, I highly doubt your take on "transparency". This administration's record in that regard, is pathetic. Maybe, for once, you'll prove us cynics (and we have every right to be) wrong.
10/26/13 Ms. Alice Green	And all information that the USA learns NEEDS to be shared with all of the people in the USA. Not kept secret like so much information that we have every right to know is kept secret.
10/26/13 Ms. Sara Porter	What is also amazing is the number of callous individuals who would put us all at risk in order to make money.
10/26/13 Mrs. Vivianne Mosca-Clark	Shining the light in the dark is a good way to go. No one who is being untruthful will want anyone seeing what they are truly doing. That is why deals done in backrooms with closed doors is not working out... conflicting back rooms deals. The untruthful actions of some people in congress is not helping our country. We are being made a mockery to the rest of the world, by the selfish actions of congress and our military. This has to stop. So please continue to shine the light on the rude actions of the few people.
10/26/13 Mrs. Imgard Conley	Having just been reminded forcefully about the fact that the General Public is woefully under-informed about what is done by our supposedly Open and Democratic Government, it is even more important that this attitude will be changed.
10/26/13 Mr. Andrew Nicholas	Hidden profits from OUR resources is not something we want or need. Robust reporting is important and the U.S. needs to be a worldwide leader of transparency. It is evident from the 39 countries that have already signed on that amazing things can happen when light is brought to spots of darkness.
10/26/13 Mr. Paul Schutt	It is time to support fair payments to our governments for resource extraction by private companies. There should be uniform world wide royalties for all resource extraction.
10/26/13 Ms. Lesley McCormach	The resources of public lands should be for the public at large.

10/26/13 Ms. Julie Claunch	This is simply not acceptable, and we need to know the truth, and to stop the abuses. Taxpayer dollars and taxpayer property must be protected from such scandalous acts! Please stand up and do the right thing, stand up for us all.
10/26/13 Mr. Steven Combes	STOP THE GLUTTONY!!
10/26/13 Dr. Anne Botwin	I do not wish to support huge corporate profits though mining or drilling or fracking. Robust reporting is important and the U.S. needs to be a worldwide leader in this effort. 39 countries that have already signed on to join the Extractive Industries Transparency Initiative. The United States needs to be the 40th!
10/26/13 Ms. Patricia Orlinski	Join the 39 countries and demand transparency.
10/26/13 Ms. Mary Doino	This an important issue, we know that the extractive industries have been paying very little for Native American lands, and very little goes to the people it s supposed to support. In the west of America,we have the extractive industries removing Millions, if not Billions of Ores, and oil. We have no idea how much, and if they are paying their fare share to the Government. The leases cost pennies per acre, yet there is no accountability to the taxpayers. Overseas these industries have stripped third world countries of their mineral wealth, while none goes to the residents of those countries. Governments have been bribed and the wealthy take advantage, while poor indigenous people suffer. Often these people are killed if their land contains oil or gold.
10/26/13 Mr. BW Ryan	This is information that all citizens have a right to know. Thanks for your efforts!
10/27/13 Dr. Susan Selbin	The U.S. needs to get onboard with transparency to help restore our reputation at home and abroad. Money enforcing secrecy has no place in keeping the American pople informed on how our publice lands are used and often abused by for-profit organizations.
10/27/13 Ms. Mary Saunders	Decent corporations will support education of the public concerning operations. Some extractive industries need to recruit conscientious new workers. An open book about how things work is a way to do this. Sharing on campuses in the states where companies operate is a way to recruit, not just from mining programs, but from CPA and business programs as well.
10/27/13 Dr. Dr Dorothy K Cinquemani	Robust reporting is important and the U.S. needs to be a worldwide leader of transparency. It is evident from the 39 countries that have already signed on that amazing things can happen when light is brought to spots of darkness.

10/27/13 Dr. Nancy Newton	I eagerly add my voice to urge that you all within your authority to make this country a leader in transparency: it is the responsible things to do, and it is the wise thing to do -- for the sake of the future of all of us.
10/27/13 Ms. Laurie LaGoe	Robust reporting is important and the U.S. needs to be a worldwide leader of transparency. It is evident from the 39 countries that have already signed on that amazing things can happen when light is brought to spots of darkness.
10/27/13 Mr. William Gene Periard	I also feel some of the fees the extractive industries pay for public leases are far too low given current prices for raw materials.
10/27/13 Dr. M B NEACE	Our leadership will go a long way to make this transparency happen.
10/27/13 Mr. Steve and Mrs. Joy Durham	We are really tired of corporate welfare at public expense. ENOUGH!
10/27/13 Ms. Susan Craze	Dear Secretary Jewell, Robust reporting is important and the U.S. needs to be a worldwide leader of transparency. It is evident from the 39 countries that have already signed on that amazing things can happen when light is brought to spots of darkness. I support EITI. I support transparency in every agency of the USA federal government. It is essential the reporting standards for extractive industries be high and remain high. Unfortunately, the corporations who mine and drill on public land would never agree to EITI. Good luck trying though. And I thank you for supporting this initiative,
10/28/13 Ms. Lynn Manzione	The Extractive Industries Transparency Initiative (EITI) is an international standard that ensures transparency around countries' oil, gas and mineral resources. It is developed and overseen by a coalition of governments, companies, civil society, investors and international organisations. All of these groups are represented on the EITI Board. The EITI Standard has a robust yet flexible methodology, which countries adopt to address specific issues they are facing. When implemented, the EITI ensures more transparency. Robust reporting is important (taxpayers don't want companies stealing the Public's resources) and the U.S. needs to be a worldwide leader of transparency. It is evident from the 39 countries that have already signed on that shining a light spots of darkness is a benefit to the people.

10/28/13 Mr. Mark Fortman	The only aspect of this issue I still have a question with is: "Why the hell was the USA, normally a leader rather than a follower, not #1 on this list of countries to be a part of this international initiative?"
10/28/13 Mr. William Walter	If the U.S. wants to be a world leader, then it needs to lead in transparency and fairness.
10/28/13 Mr. Vincent Harriman	I am all for using public natural resources, but only if I know that the resources are not being given away.
10/28/13 Mr. Marcus Lanskey	The extractive industry must be forced to pay for the environmental damage and resource depletion that they cause. Robust reporting is important and the U.S. needs to be a worldwide leader of transparency.
10/28/13 Mr. James Roberts	Reporting is a must...and the U.S. needs to be a world leader of transparency. The 39 countries that have already signed on show that amazing things can happen when light is brought to spots of darkness.
10/29/13 Ms. elyette weinstein	At a time when our government is cutting back and in need of funds, we need to expose situations in which we give away our resources to those who don't need it. This practice regarding mining is outdated, having outlived its original purpose. It is no longer needed. The public deserves to be educated regarding where its money and resources are going.
10/31/13 Mrs. Betty Chan	Robust reporting is important and the U.S. needs to be a worldwide leader of transparency. It is evident from the 39 countries that have already signed on that amazing things can happen when light is brought to spots of darkness. These 39 countries have already given the USA a good model to follow. Let us also do ETI.
10/31/13 Ms. Jennifer Lilienthal	Public land was set aside decades ago for the benefit of the public, not private profit. Squandering our natural resources today is irresponsible, and the public should be fully informed of activities on public lands. Robust reporting is important and the U.S. needs to be a worldwide leader of transparency. It is evident from the 39 countries that have already signed on that amazing things can happen when light is brought to spots of darkness.
11/1/13 Mr. dan ritzman	In my work I rely on timely, transparent information from the Government related to proposed development on public lands I support EITI to ensure that this process improves.

11/3/13 Mr. Richard Creswell	Complete, accurate, and unbiased accounting of value taken from our public lands is critical to development of our community property. We need to see that we are not giving away the store, or our kids future. The US should lead on this international issue.
11/4/13 Ms. Zorka Milin	In particular, the US EITI should include community impacts and it should cover project-level reporting as required by the new EITI standard. The US EITI standard should be consistent with the EU Directives as well as Dodd-Frank §1504.
Ms. Karen Hartman	It would be about time!
11/7/13 Dr. Josiah Heyman	Robust reporting is important and the U.S. needs to be a worldwide leader of transparency. As a scholar and influential community figure who has worked on extractive resource issues, I support this initiative.
11/7/13 Dr. Patricia K Townsend	As a researcher, I have been working on the issue of transparency in developing countries but as a citizen, I realize that we have no clear idea about this for our own country. I suspect from my own research on mining overseas that Canadian mining companies, for example, are racking up substantial profits in US mines while leaving environmental debts for American taxpayers to cope with in the future, but without this robust reporting I would now know how to document any of this.
11/7/13 Mr. Jim Parris	This is true overseas and here in the United States and also for the production on Indian reservations across our country. We need transparency to be enacted in order to allow us all to "follow the money" and see what is being collected and paid out from the royalties, bonuses, lease rentals and any other fees related to the production of natural resources.
11/8/13 Dr. S. Thomas Bond	As a native of West Virginia I have seen the externalized cost such as health effects, accidents, environmental cost and the destruction of private property due to unchecked and barely regulated mineral exploitation. It ties people up so they have few alternatives to help themselves and leaves a society of ignorant, defeatist citizens. At a time when the population is increasing world wide, we need to evaluate our resources diminished by mineral extraction and the loss of ecosystem services

11/8/13 Ms. Marilyn McDaniel	Clear, concise, and jargon-free reporting is important and the U.S. needs to be a worldwide leader of transparency. It is evident from the 39 countries that have already signed on that progress will happen when light is brought to spots of darkness.
11/9/13 Ms. julie claunch	We also need these industries to be held accountable, and any unjust profits returned to the American people.
11/11/13 Ms. Natalie Atherton	The public deserves to know that we are getting the benefits of the extractive industries, since we are forced to assume the risks to our health, our communities, and the environment.
11/12/13 Ms. Jean Hricik	Just as I am dismayed that the U. S. refused to sign on to the UN declaration of water as a fundamental human right, I have been deeply concerned with the superimposing of capitalism over democracy as a U. S. policy. http://www.democracynow.org/2010/7/29/in_historic_vote_un_declares_access Corruption in government is flaming. Transparency has been lacking for far too long. Attention to human and environmental rights must be maintained over corporate/governmental greed and power-grab.
11/13/13 Mrs. Susan Mikosz	It is important to know who really benefits. I would want to know!!!
11/13/13 Mr. Ross Spears	I am a producer for PBS television in the U.S. and I make documentaries that include information about energy and resources. We badly need more transparency in the this area. Please give the American public the information it needs to make proper decisions for the future!!
