REQUIREMENT 1.1

The government is required to issue an unequivocal public statement of its intention to implement the EITI. The statement must be made by the head of state or government, or an appropriately delegated government representative.

On September 20, 2011 while in New York for the United Nations General Assembly, President Barack Obama gave an address to the Open Government Partnership where he committed to implement the EITI in the U.S.:

“We’re continuing our leadership of the global effort against corruption, by building on legislation that now requires oil, gas, and mining companies to disclose the payments that foreign governments demand of them. Today, I can announce that the United States will join the global initiative in which these industries, governments and civil society, all work together for greater transparency so that taxpayers receive every dollar they’re due from the extraction of natural resources.”

In conjunction with the President’s announcement, the U.S. unveiled its National Action Plan for the Open Government Partnership (OGP), including as one of its commitments the pledge to manage public resources more effectively by implementing the EITI. The U.S. OGP National Action Plan states:

“The Extractive Industries Transparency Initiative (EITI) has developed a voluntary framework under which governments publicly disclose their revenues from oil, gas, and mining assets, and companies make parallel disclosures regarding payments that they are making to obtain access to publicly owned resources. These voluntary disclosures are designed to foster integrity and accountability when it comes to development of the world’s natural resources. This Administration:

- Is Hereby Committing to Implement the EITI to Ensure that Taxpayers Are Receiving Every Dollar Due for Extraction of our Natural Resources. The U.S. is a major developer of natural resources. The U.S. collects approximately $10 billion in annual revenues from the development of oil, gas, and minerals on federal lands and offshore, and disburses the bulk of these revenues to the U.S. Treasury, with smaller portions disbursed to five federal agencies, 35 States, 41 American Indian tribes, and approximately 30,000 individual Indian mineral owners. By signing onto the global standard that EITI sets, the U.S. Government can help ensure that American taxpayers are receiving every dollar due for the extraction of these valuable public resources.
- Will Work in Partnership with Industry and Citizens to Build on Recent Progress. The Administration has already made important strides in reforming the management of our natural resources to ensure that there are no conflicts of interest between the production and the collection of revenues from these resources. Signing onto the EITI initiative will further these objectives by creating additional “sunshine” for the process of collecting revenues from natural resource extraction. Industry already provides the Federal Government with this data. We should share it with all of our citizens. Toward that end, the Federal Government will work with industry and citizens to develop a sensible plan over the next two years for disclosing relevant information and enhancing the accountability and transparency of our revenue collection efforts.”

REQUIREMENT 1.2

The government is required to appoint a senior individual to lead the implementation of the EITI. The appointee should have the confidence of all stakeholders, the authority and freedom to coordinate action on the EITI across relevant ministries and agencies, and be able to mobilize resources for EITI implementation.

On October 25, 2011, the White House announced the appointment of the Secretary of the Interior as the senior U.S. official responsible for successful U.S. implementation of EITI:

“President Obama is pleased to announce that the Secretary of the Interior Ken Salazar will be the senior individual responsible for oversight of U.S. implementation of the Extractive Industries Transparency Initiative (EITI). As part of the United States Open Government National Action Plan released in September, the President announced that the United States, a long-time champion of EITI, would itself implement EITI in order to ensure that taxpayers receive every dollar due for extraction of our natural resources. Secretary Salazar and his staff will work with industry and civil society to develop a sensible plan to disclose relevant information about revenues from oil, gas, and mining assets, and to enhance the accountability and transparency of our revenue collection efforts. Under Secretary Salazar’s leadership, the Department of the Interior has a strong record of partnering with industry and citizens to make important strides in reforming the management of our natural resources, and EITI is just the latest in a long series of steps designed to make the U.S. government more open and more accountable to the American people.”

The Secretary of the Interior has relied upon the Assistant Secretary for Policy, Management and Budget Rhea Suh to carry out the day-to-day management of USEITI implementation, including as Chair of the MSG. Assistant Secretary Suh oversees a wide variety of functions that support USEITI, chief among them the Office of Natural Resources Revenue (ONRR), as well as those parts of the organization responsible for budget, finance, human capital, information technology, collaborative action and dispute resolution, policy analysis, and international affairs. ONRR is responsible for the management of revenues associated with federal offshore and federal and American Indian onshore mineral leases, as well as revenues received as a result of onshore and offshore renewable energy efforts. This revenue management effort is one of the U.S. government’s greatest sources of non-tax revenues.

Assistant Secretary Suh and her staff, including the Deputy Assistant Secretary for Natural Resources Revenue and the Director of ONRR, coordinate across government agencies and provide financing, personnel and other required resources to support USEITI.

REQUIREMENT 1.3

The government is required to commit to work with civil society and companies, and establish a multi-stakeholder group to oversee the implementation of the EITI.

- a) The government, companies and civil society must be fully, actively and effectively engaged in the EITI process.
- b) The government must ensure that there is an enabling environment for company and civil society participation with regard to relevant laws, regulations, and administrative rules as well as actual practice in implementation of the EITI. The fundamental rights of civil society and company representatives substantively engaged in the EITI, including but not restricted to members of the multi-stakeholder group, must be respected.
- c) The government must ensure that there are no obstacles to civil society or company participation in the EITI process.
- d) The government must refrain from actions which result in narrowing or restricting public debate in relation to implementation of the EITI.
- e) Stakeholders, including but not limited to members of the multi-stakeholder group must:
  - i. Be able to speak freely on transparency and natural resource governance issues.
  - ii. Be substantially engaged in the design, implementation, monitoring and evaluation of the EITI process, and ensure that it contributes to public debate.
  - iii. Have the right to communicate and cooperate with each other.
  - iv. Be able to operate freely and express opinions about the EITI without restraint, coercion or reprisal.
- f) In establishing the multi-stakeholder group, the government must:
  - i. Ensure that the invitation to participate in the group is open and transparent.
  - ii. Ensure that stakeholders are adequately represented. This does not mean that they need to be equally represented numerically. The multi-stakeholder group must comprise appropriate stakeholders, including but not necessarily limited to: the private sector; civil society, including independent civil society groups and other civil society such as the media and unions; and relevant government entities which can also include parliamentarians. Each stakeholder group must have the right to appoint its own representatives, bearing in mind the desirability of pluralistic and diverse representation. The nomination process must be independent and free from any suggestion of coercion. Civil society groups involved in the EITI as members of the multi-stakeholder group must be operationally, and in policy terms, independent of government and/or companies.

iii. Ensure that senior government officials are represented on the multi-stakeholder group.

iv. Consider establishing the legal basis of the group.

g) The multi-stakeholder group is required to agree on clear public Terms of Reference (TOR) for its work.

In the U.S. National Action Plan for the Open Government Partnership, released in September 2011, the U.S. committed to working with civil society and companies to implement EITI:

“Will Work in Partnership with Industry and Citizens to Build on Recent Progress... the Federal Government will work with industry and citizens to develop a sensible plan over the next two years for disclosing relevant information and enhancing the accountability and transparency of our revenue collection efforts.”

In October 2011, the Secretary of the Interior underscored the same commitment in a White House blog:

“A critical component of our reform efforts is the President's commitment to implementing what is known as the Extractive Industries Transparency Initiative (EITI)... Our work under this initiative is only beginning, and I look forward to working closely with industry, stakeholders, and the public on EITI as we move forward.”

From November 2011 to February 2012, a U.S. government team began a “get smart” phase on the EITI. They met with past and current EITI Board members and the EITI International Secretariat, travelled to and observed a Board meeting in the UK, and visited Oslo to meet with Norwegian counterparts and obtain lessons learned on EITI implementation. The government also hired an independent facilitator, Consensus Building Institute (CBI), to assist with the design and execution of a neutral stakeholder assessment. The CBI is a not-for-profit organization founded in 1993 by leading practitioners and theory builders in the fields of negotiation and dispute resolution

From February to June of 2012, the U.S. government and its neutral facilitator conducted extensive public outreach with stakeholders to understand the composition of our EITI stakeholders in the U.S., what types of people and organizations could represent them, and how to best form a multi-stakeholder group (MSG) to implement EITI in the U.S. The U.S. government undertook this work in order to fulfill Step 4 of the EITI process: “The government is required to establish a multi-stakeholder group to oversee the implementation of the EITI.” During two public comment periods, they:

- held seven public listening sessions in places where resources extraction occurs and/or where extractives companies are headquartered: Anchorage, Alaska; Denver, Colorado; Houston, Texas; New Orleans, Louisiana; Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania; St. Louis, Missouri; and Washington, DC);
- conducted a webinar to reach stakeholders throughout the country who could not attend in-person sessions;
- hosted a day-long workshop in Washington, DC for members of government, civil society, and industry constituencies; and

- solicited public comment via a Federal Register Notice, by email, and on the Department of the Interior website.

In addition, from February 2012 onward, Interior, given its trust responsibilities to American Indian tribes, including the collection of extractive revenues on behalf of numerous tribes and individual Indian mineral owners from their lands, also conducted tribal outreach, through:

- official correspondence with tribal government leaders, including through official letters to tribal leaders: informed tribal leaders of the EITI initiative (2/16/12); outlined how EITI may impact Indian country and provided an opportunity to comment (5/21/12); announced the formation of the MSG provided an opportunity to comment and submit nominees (7/27/12); announced the appointment of MSG members and the date of the first MSG meeting, invited tribal participation (2/1/13); and provided an update on the status of EITI implementation and invited tribal participation (5/10/13).
- briefings and meetings with tribal governments, including in-person informational meetings with Navajo Nation, Cherokee Nation, Osage Nation, Choctaw Nation, Alaska Native Regional and Village Corporations;
- information sessions before the National Congress of American Indians, the Tribal Budget Advisory Committee, the State and Tribal Royalty Audit Committee, and the Alaska Federation of Natives; and
- informational phone calls to Three Affiliated Tribes, Fort Peck Tribe, Montana-Wyoming Tribal Leader's Council, Council on Energy Resource Tribes, United South and Eastern Tribe, and Oklahoma Indian Land/Mineral Owners of Associated Nations (OILMAN).

Based on the stakeholder assessment that incorporated feedback from public outreach and stakeholder interviews with neutral facilitators, the final report recommended convening a MSG of twenty-one (21) members comprised of seven (7) members per sector. After extensive stakeholder input, the report concluded that this number was the absolute minimum number necessary to adequately represent the range of interests within and across sectors. Based on these findings, in July 2012, the Secretary of the Interior established an Advisory Committee under the Federal Advisory Committee Act of 1972 (FACA) to serve as the USEITI MSG. In establishing the Committee, the Charter named the Assistant Secretary for Policy, Management and Budget Rhea Suh as the Chair of the Committee.

From mid-July to mid-October, the Department of the Interior solicited nominations for the Committee and from civil society, industry and government, and the neutral facilitator worked with stakeholders from industry and civil society to recruit nominees and submit endorsements. To ensure adequate representation, on December 22, 2012, the Secretary, in compliance with FACA appointed 21 primary and 20 alternate members to the USEITI MSG from the nominations made by each sector. All of the civil society representatives appointed were operationally and in policy terms independent of both government and industry. Upon receipt of nominations, the Secretary appointed 8 representatives from industry, 8 representatives from civil society, and 5 representatives for the government sector. The Secretary purposely did not fill all 8 government sector vacancies to allow for future state and tribal representation.

In February 2013, the Department of the Interior hosted an informational teleconference for MSG members to provide an orientation to EITI, while each of the sectors also conducted internal pre-meetings to provide further background and prepare for the first meeting. At the first MSG meeting, hosted by the Secretary of the Interior on February 13, 2013 in Washington, DC, the group reviewed terms of reference (TOR) detailing the way in which they would work together in a consensus-based fashion, discussed a timeline for completing work in 2013, and formed a subcommittee to carry out work between MSG meetings, including drafting of this application.

In April, the MSG convened by teleconference to further review and revise the TOR. Subsequent meetings of the MSG were held in May, June and July 2013 in Washington, DC and convened by Assistant Secretary Rhea Suh. At these meetings, the MSG:

- adopted a TOR;
- agreed to a timeline for meetings and development of this application and decided to conduct a public comment period to solicit feedback on the application;
- discussed the scope and mechanisms for USEITI reporting, as well as thresholds for reconciliation in the first and second reports;
- decided to seek adapted implementation at the application stage for payments to subnational entities given the federal government structure in the U.S. and autonomy of U.S. states;
- decided to continue tribal outreach and consultation with the nation's tribal governments and communities; and
- decided to develop a mechanism for state governments and tribal governments to opt-in to the federal reporting process.

Following FACA guidelines, information about all USEITI MSG meetings is available to the public via Federal Register Notice at least 15 days prior to each meeting. All meeting agendas, materials and minutes are posted for the MSG and the public online at <http://www.doi.gov/eiti/FACA/meetings.cfm>. In addition, summaries of all subcommittee meetings are also posted online at <http://www.doi.gov/eiti/FACA/useiti-subcommittee.cfm>. All MSG meetings are open to the public, and teleconference lines are provided for the public to listen while presentations are displayed via WebEx. Designated public comment times are allocated at each meeting for the public to share their views with the MSG on any matters at hand. Members of the general public have attended each MSG meeting in person or by phone.

REQUIREMENT 1.4

The multi-stakeholder group is required to maintain a current workplan, fully costed and aligned with the reporting and Validation deadlines established by the EITI Board. The workplan must:

- a) Set EITI implementation objectives that are linked to the EITI Principles and reflect national priorities for the extractive industries. Multi-stakeholder groups are encouraged to explore innovative approaches to extending EITI implementation to increase the comprehensiveness of EITI reporting and public understanding of revenues and encourage high standards of transparency and accountability in public life, government operations and in business.
- b) Reflect the results of consultations with key stakeholders, and be endorsed by the multi-stakeholder group.
- c) Include measurable and time bound activities to achieve the agreed objectives. The scope of EITI implementation should be tailored to contribute to the desired objectives that have been identified during the consultation process. The workplan must:
  - i. Assess and outline plans to address any potential capacity constraints in government agencies, companies and civil society that may be an obstacle to effective EITI implementation.
  - ii. Address the scope of EITI reporting, including plans for addressing technical aspects of reporting, such as comprehensiveness and data reliability (Requirements 4 and 5).
  - iii. Identify and outline plans to address any potential legal or regulatory obstacles to EITI implementation, including, if applicable, any plans to incorporate the EITI Requirements within national legislation or regulation.

Scope and Materiality

During its meetings in May, June, and July 2013, the USEITI MSG heard and discussed a number of presentations about federal, state, and tribal extractives revenue payments and collections, as well as the legal authorities and restrictions for public disclosure and reconciliation of these payments and collections. After extensive negotiations and compromises within and across stakeholder sectors to attain consensus, the MSG made decisions regarding scope and materiality for its first report and the expected direction of the second report. The MSG also agreed to a timeline for seeking candidacy, compliance, and validation. These decisions are reflected in the fully costed work plan attached to this application, and also summarized below.

Based on the decisions made by the MSG, the commodities deemed to be within the scope of USEITI and to be included in the first USEITI report are: oil, gas, coal, other leasable minerals, and non-fuel minerals (e.g. hard rock, sand and gravel), geothermal, solar, and wind. From this list, payments to the U.S. Department of the Interior, as noted below, for oil, gas, coal, other leasable minerals, and non-fuel minerals, where they meet the materiality definition agreed by the MSG, will be independently reconciled. Revenues from all in scope commodities will be unilaterally disclosed by the Department of the Interior also as noted below. Other resources that have been tabled for further discussion and potential inclusion in the second USEITI report are forestry and fisheries.

Government and company disclosure and third party reconciliation will compare data from companies on their payments to government with data from government on revenues collected from companies. USEITI Reports will include a reconciliation of U.S. Federal Government Department of the Interior revenues such as rents, royalties, bonuses, and fees collected by the Bureau of Land Management (BLM), Office of Natural Resources Revenues (ONRR), and Office of Surface Mining Reclamation and Enforcement (OSM) for in-scope commodities within a reporting materiality threshold. The materiality threshold established by the MSG will balance the scale of reconciliation and feasibility of compliance with the value of the collected data. The reconciliation process is intended to start at a level which will reconcile approximately 80% of all revenues within the scope received by Department of Interior (DOI) for the first year and to increase to 90% of such revenues in the second year.

We will be including federal tax revenues in the USEITI report, but the MSG is still working on the details of the inclusion (see MSG legal constraints below).

Extending EITI to Increase Comprehensiveness

In addition to reconciliation, the U.S. intends as part of its EITI process to provide additional data, where meaningful and feasible. These disclosures are intended to provide an unprecedented level of detail about revenue collections and reporting, demonstrating a robust and credible transparency framework. This will include:

- A publicly sourced narrative: USEITI Reports will make more accessible and understandable data and information that is currently publicly available from U.S. government agencies and other official sources in order to give context and a well-rounded picture of the extractive industries in the U.S. This will include information for additional types of natural resources that will not be reconciled under USEITI.
- Unilateral disclosure of government revenue collection records: In USEITI Reports, the U.S. Department of the Interior will disclose complete, reliable data, disaggregated by commodity, company, revenue stream and by project (to the extent allowable by law and by existing parameters of reporting to Interior). This will apply to 100% of extractive revenues collected by Interior that are determined to be within scope by the MSG regardless of the materiality threshold. It represents a level of government disclosure not previously seen in EITI.

Legal and Other Constraints:

The MSG received from the Departments of the Interior and Treasury and discussed an analysis of the legal parameters and other potential constraints to U.S. implementation of the Extractive Industries Transparency Initiative (USEITI). There are legal considerations depending on the type of payment being disclosed.

DOI Payments and Revenues:

Companies currently report royalty and related non-tax payments to ONRR, and a summary of this information is already publicly disclosed. The Trade Secrets Act (TSA) governs types of information that can be disclosed by the U.S. government.

So long as MSG proposals for defining company or project-level reporting are consistent with the TSA, DOI may disclose reported revenues at a company or project-level to a third-party reconciler, and the information can then be made public. Similarly, there are no federal statutory or regulatory legal barriers prohibiting companies from voluntarily and independently disclosing DOI reported revenue payments directly to a third-party reconciler which can then be made public.

Federal Corporate Income Tax Payments and Revenues:

Potential legal constraints were identified with respect to tax reporting:

- Section 6103 of the Internal Revenue Code (IRC) provides that tax returns and tax return information are confidential and prohibited from disclosure, unless an exception identified in the IRC applies. The IRC imposes civil and criminal penalties for violations of the disclosure prohibitions. Nonetheless, taxpayers may consent to have their tax information disclosed to specific parties.
- The Privacy Act of 1974 only allows the Internal Revenue Service (IRS) to gather information that is used for tax administration purposes. If the IRS were to collect information or develop new systems and processes for EITI, these actions would need to support tax administration objectives consistent with the Privacy Act.

The MSG has agreed that taxes will be reported as part of USEITI, but the details for how to do so remain to be agreed upon by the MSG prior to publication of the first EITI report. Complicating reporting from a practical point of view, there are differing tax reporting requirements that currently exist between the IRC and the Securities Exchange Act. In addition, many extractives company tax payments to the IRS are consolidated payments that do not solely reflect their upstream extractive activities in the U.S. for a given period of time. In other words, extractives company tax payments in the U.S. in a given tax or calendar year, represent for many companies a range of activities that are not all extractive in nature, do not reflect company activity only in the U.S. and correspond to activities in multiple tax reporting periods. One approach under consideration is the use of the reporting of tax payments under Section 13(q) of the U.S. Securities Exchange Act of 1934 (as amended by Dodd-Frank Section 1504), which may include data on actual cash payments consistent with the Global EITI Standard.

Adapted Implementation

Sub-national Payments and Revenues:

USEITI requests adapted implementation with regard to subnational revenue collection, to account for the complexities of the U.S. federal system. For the initial stages of USEITI reporting, the MSG intends to seek participation by states to opt-in to USEITI reporting on a case-by-case basis. The Federal Government is strongly committed to the USEITI process, and members of the USEITI MSG who represent subnational constituencies will continue to provide input on the benefits and challenges of subnational reporting to the MSG and subnational actors. USEITI will design a process for subnational governments to opt-in to reporting subnational revenue collections in USEITI reports. Where important to a contextual understanding of extractive industries and government revenues and transfers, subnational data will be included in USEITI reports. At a minimum, basic information currently available to the public and accessible to federal government agencies on the scale of subnational production and revenue collections will be included in the publicly sourced narrative of USEITI reports. The U.S. request for adapted implementation is attached to this application.

Tribal Payments and Revenues:

The U.S. has a unique legal and political relationship with Indian tribes and Alaska Native entities as provided by its Constitution, treaties, court decisions, and federal statutes. Within the government-to-government relationship, the Department of the Interior provides services directly or through contracts, grants, or compacts to 566 federally recognized tribes with a service population of about 1.9 million American Indian and Alaska Natives. On November 5, 2009, President Obama issued an executive order directing each Federal agency to conduct tribal outreach and consultation on Federal policies and programs that have implications for tribes. Following these guidelines, the Department of the Interior has conducted extensive outreach with tribal governments and tribal leaders regarding the benefits of EITI and inviting tribes to observe or participate in USEITI. To date, tribal governments have asked to be kept informed of USEITI but have chosen not to observe, nor to participate. The MSG intends to continue outreach with tribal governments and communities, and will seek their input on whether and how to design a process for tribes to voluntarily participate and opt-in to reporting with tribal data.

*Funding Source: ONRR's EITI Allocation. The allocation for EITI is derived from ONRR's annual appropriated funds. This iteration of the workplan does not incorporate the costs to other Federal agencies and other sectors.

** Due to the constrained budget environment under sequestration, the USEITI National Secretariat is being staffed by redirecting 4 ONRR, DC-based FTE (current onboard staff and vacant FTE). To date, all payroll costs associated with implementing USEITI are being absorbed by multiple Federal Departments (Interior, Treasury, State, and Energy) from their annual funding appropriations, not paid for with ONRR's EITI allocation.

*** In FY 2014, the budget includes only half of the costs for the reconciler/USEITI Report.

ANNEX 3: REQUEST FOR ADAPTED IMPLEMENTATION

USEITI requests adapted implementation with regard to subnational revenue collection, to account for the complexities of the U.S. federal system.

The Multi-Stakeholder Group has been working to secure state participation in USEITI. Four of the USEITI MSG seats in the government sector (two members and two alternates) were reserved for state participants, and have been occupied by representatives from the States of New Mexico and California, and representatives of the Interstate Oil and Gas Compact Commission and Interstate Mining Compact Commission. Already, these members have been providing input on the challenges and opportunities of sub-national reporting. Additionally, members representing the civil society sector have been actively engaging their regionally-based constituencies to address subnational interests.

The materiality of state and county-level revenue collection has been discussed and analyzed at the May and June 2013 meetings of the USEITI MSG. It was agreed that using nearly any definition of materiality, payments made by companies directly to several states and counties would be considered material under the EITI Standard. In the U.S., state governments often collect payments directly from companies for oil, gas, and mining activities taking place in that state. Payments may be collected by state and county authorities for resource extraction on federal land (e.g. severance tax), state land (e.g. royalties), and/or private land (e.g. income taxes).

Each state has developed its own system of revenue collection related to resource extraction, and the benefit streams and volume of revenues collected varies widely from state to state. While states have been invited and encouraged to participate in USEITI, none have accepted to voluntarily report to date. The MSG is committed to working with sub-national governments to encourage their participation.

As a result, the U.S. requests adapted implementation of EITI Requirement 4.2(d). This request was endorsed by the USEITI MSG during its meeting in June 2013. USEITI intends to design a process for sub-national governments to participate and opt-in to reporting sub-national data within the federal report. In addition, the USEITI Report will include information about subnational revenue collections through public sources and voluntary disclosures, and Freedom of Information requests.
