It's time again for the next Priority Goal Quarterly Status Review (QSR) to assess and discuss the progress of priority initiatives as of the close of the third quarter of FY2014 and determine any potential problems in need of attention to better ensure attainment of the goals. As has been done previously, Mike Connor has chaired these reviews in his role as Chief Operating Officer (COO). We conduct these reviews, as required by the GPRAModernization Act, so that senior leadership can review the progress towards achieving the Priority Goals prior to the information being submitted to OMB (due August 8) for public display on the www.performance.gov website. We are in process of potentially expanding the scope of the Quarterly Status Review (QSR) to also include a status of addressing Strategic Annual Review recommendations and initiatives that have been identified by Assistant Secretaries as key to addressing Secretarial priorities, and hope to have a premeeting with Mike to discuss adding these topics. But for now we are still requesting an hour for the QSR. If at all possible, it would be helpful to have the QSR in early August to try and meet OMB's August 8 reporting deadline. file: POC: Rich Beck, [REDACTED]

Description:

DPC, with other White House Offices, is pulling together a DeputiesMeeting to discuss criminal and juvenile justice system reform. This is a White House priority. Virtually every domestic cabinet level agency plays a role in the criminal justice system, whether as a result of their work on public safety, sentencing, incarceration/detention, violence-reduction, recidivism reduction, forensic science or some other aspect of the system. There is a lot of great work happening across federal agencies on issues involving various parts of the criminal and juvenile justice systems. This DC will be the start of a broad conversation that is intended to inform a September principals' meeting on ways that we can work more together and coordinate efforts. A slide deck for framing the discussion will be provided prior to the meeting. Please note that this DC is separate from the 2:30pm DC on labor force participation, which will include a discussion on barriers to employment for justice involved individuals.

Description:

Dear Water, Climate & Energy, and Earth Science Friends-- Join us for a happy hour bowling extravaganza on Friday, August 15th from 5pm -7pm at the White House's Truman Bowling Alley. Come show off your bowling moves and ease into the weekend with some of the greatest people working in government we know. Frequently Asked Questions • Why is this happening? Because bowling at the Executive Office is really kind of awesome and we'd love to see you! • What if I don't bowl? Is that relevant? Personally, we're coming for the company. • Can I take selfies in front of the West Wing and Bowling Alley? Yes. • Are we allowed to drink alcohol in there? Umm, are you all a bunch of lushes or what? Yes, of course, but keg stands on the lane are strictly prohibited! • When is it? Friday, August 15, 2014 5:00 pm to 7:00 pm • Who do I bring? Just your bad self. • Can I bring others? Oh how we wish! But, we're at capacity on this one. • What do I have to do to make this happen? By Monday, August 4th drop a line to Lori and myself letting us know if you are coming. By that date, also please supply your security clearance info to Melanie (see attached form). Please note that the info you send must match the ID (drivers license or Passport) you bring exactly or the secret service will not let you in. And, that would make us very sad. If you are an EOP'er--just stop on by! • On Game Day Where do I go? The Old Executive Office Building (We'll send a map for where to meet up) • What do I bring? Food/drink contributions (We'll order pizza and beer and other libations) Look forward to seeing you all soon! Happy Friday!
