Sharing our Heritage with the World

Featuring Dan Ho

Dan Ho is no stranger to media – whether it is print or television. Referred to as the “anti-Martha Stewart” by Time magazine and USA Today, Mr. Dan Ho, has a long list of credits that helped him become Guam’s first nationally known television personality.

He is the published author of two books. He has been the publisher and creator of a magazine which gained recognition from both the Library Journal and Folio as one of the top 10 new magazines of 2003. His Discovery Channel television show, THE DAN HO SHOW, was created after he experienced a major life changing event in February 1998. The show is syndicated in the United States, Canada and Asia. He has contributed to PBS National, Canadian Broadcasting Network, The Hallmark Channel and American Public Television.

He recently returned to Guam, established his own production company and The Micronesian Image Institute. He serves as the Creative Director of Guam’s public television station, PBS Guam.
