Recommended Sites for the Guam First-Timer

History/Beautiful View: Fort Nuestra Senora de la Soledad was one of the last Spanish Forts constructed in the 19th Century in support of the Spanish Galleon trade. Sitting on a cliff, Fort Soledad has a commanding view of the bay and all ocean approaches. The Fort was restored in 1995 and today the cannon of Fort Soledad still points out over the Pacific Ocean and Umatac Bay where Magellan landed in 1521 to make the first contact between Guam and the West.

Nature: Ritidian Beach is widely considered by locals to be Guam’s most beautiful beach. Ritidian Point contains the archaeological site of a pre-Magellan Chamorro village, a former barrier reef that is now a 500-foot limestone cliff and beaches where threatened green sea turtles nest. This area is the only designated critical habitat in Guam because it is home to some of the last confirmed populations of the Mariana fruit bat, Micronesian Kingfisher, Mariana Common Moorhen and Mariana Crow.

Culture: Adjacent to the Boat Basin is the Chamorro Village or farmer’s market. The Spanish colonial-style buildings house local entrepreneurs, who participate in the economic activity of the island, and concurrently, help preserve the culture through the marketing of local talent and craftsmanship. Predominant among the market shops are restaurants with Asian-influenced cultural delicacies. Fresh fish, fruits, vegetables, plants & flowers, desserts and treats, and betelnut are also sold by farmers. Every Wednesday night from 5:30 p.m. to 9:30 p.m., the Village features ancient cultural dances, reggae and live bands, demonstrations by master crafters, costumes and exhibitions by Guam's youth under quaint settings. The Guam Museum Satellite, aquarium, and petting zoo are also located there.

Thursday, April 3, 2014: Guam Community Tour
The Community Tour will include several stops, including a HUD-funded homeless project or low income public housing area, social service and health centers, schools, sites dedicated to economic development, and specialized programs funded by federal agencies. Participants will meet with service providers and community members at various locations and dialogue on education, health, housing, labor, social, environmental, economic development, and other issues. This tour will provide participants with an understanding of Guam from the community’s perspective, providing leaders of different sectors an opportunity to see how various grants and programs are benefitting the Pacific Islands.

CONCLUSION:
There has seldom been a gathering of diverse federal officials, policy makers, chief executives and non-profit leaders in the Pacific Island region. Additionally, WHIAAPI has not hosted a convening outside of the continental United States that focuses on a number of issues related to disparity and inequality, lack of access to services, and improvement of health, educational and social standing for Asian Americans, Native Hawaiians and Pacific Islanders, and this will serve as an opportunity for participants to collaborate on these issues.

Your participation and leadership acknowledges the important collective role that the federal government, community-based organizations, private sector leadership, and philanthropy can play by collaborating with Pacific Islander leaders to address significant challenges in the Pacific region.
