Update (apologies if this is too much minutiae): plaintiffs' responses to our motion to transfer came in last night. (b)(5) DPP (b)(5) ACP

All-

The status conference went well. In a nutshell:

1. The Judge is going to grant our motions to consolidate, so that all challenges to BENM are consolidated, and both challenges to GSENM are also consolidated.
2. Pacific Legal Foundation's motion to intervene, as well as GSEP's motion for partial summary judgment, will effectively be stayed pending the Judge's decision on our motion to transfer to the District of Utah, which she indicated she would decide as quickly as she could.
3. Plaintiffs declined the Judge's offer of an extension to respond to the motion to transfer, so their responses are due tomorrow. Our reply in further support will be due a week from tomorrow, although the Judge indicated she would entertain a motion for more time after we see the P's briefs.
4. Plaintiffs asked the Judge to set a briefing schedule for motions for summary judgment in the event she denies the motion to transfer, but she ultimately declined. The parties are to confer to work on an appropriate schedule for our motion to dismiss (currently due March 16) and possible additional motions for partial summary judgment (on the latter point, P's are also to confer as to whether they all join in GSEP's motion).

5. Finally, GSEP indicated that they filed their motion for partial summary judgment so quickly because they were concerned about impacts of activities on the ground, and asked that we be required to notify them of future actions. The Judge declined to impose that order, in part because we noted that additional actions on the ground would require more process.
