Technically, yes. However, I would be willing to add as many as needed to get through the process in a timely manner.

Also, my students are working on another project at the moment and finishing their compliance certs, so we can use the extra help.

If you have personnel who want to join in, just send me a list of emails and I can add them to the account.

It is my understanding that the peer network applies only with those registered with the system. We have a limited number of licenses to use DiscoverText, and only those designated by their bureaus as members of the review team should be able to access the system. So unfortunately, I don't think those you sent the requests to will be able to participate.

Thanks. Also was wondering if there are any benefits to building your peer network? I sent a few folks some invitations.
